

Storytelling Courses with Sue Hollingsworth

February – March 2018

Cape Town, South Africa

In collaboration with INTUIT

Saturday Feb 3rd Personal Storytelling Taster Day

A one day introduction to the delights of telling personal stories. Come along to explore your imagination in a safe, creative place, have some fun with other like minded people and step into the world of story. No experience needed, absolute beginners welcome!

Cost: R800

Sunday Feb 11th – Sunday March 4th Biographical Storytelling Intensive

This 3 week, full time storytelling course focuses on learning the art of telling true life, autobiographical stories to a group of listeners. Many people these days have a story to tell: it might be an important moment in their lives, something funny or sad, or their personal involvement in a larger, historical happening. By the end of the course you will have the skills necessary to shape and craft any story that you want to tell.

A maximum of 12 students will be accepted to ensure individual attention. Some storytelling experience is beneficial but beginners will also be considered.

Cost: R17,500 for students from Southern Africa (some financial assistance available) - R35,000 for students from the rest of the world.

The Golden Key: Storytelling as a Path of Personal Development (a 4-week modular course)

Long before writing was invented, human beings sat around the fire telling each other stories in the evening. The stories shared would have been what happened to them that day or perhaps to their ancestors in the past, but also legends, myths, stories of the animals and the other beings who share our planet. Through the medium of the stories, every person would have absorbed the culture and values of their peoples, known how to behave and why, understood their place in the community and what was expected of them. These days our families and communities are widely dispersed.

We no longer sit around the fire sharing stories and we are most likely to turn to good friends, coaches or therapists to understand our unique purpose in the world, to feel a sense of belonging and to make sense of the sometimes apparently senseless things that happen to us, our families, our country and the world.

But what if the stories still carry the deep wisdom of the past and we have just lost the ability to decode them? And what if they can provide the help we need as 21st century human beings to live a meaningful life?

Dates: March 11th – 16th, July 16th – 20th, Oct 15th – 19th & Jan 28th – Feb 1st 2019

Cost: R12,000 for all 4 weeks

Course Leader:

Sue Hollingsworth is Director of the Centre for Biographical Storytelling, a Founder of the International School of Storytelling in the UK where she worked for 21 years and co-author of The Storyteller's Way, the best-selling book on storytelling. Sue has been teaching and performing regularly in South Africa for the past 8 years. It is with pride that INTUIT brings her to South Africa to share her wealth of storytelling experience.

To book your place or if you have further questions please contact Ruth Penfold at INTUIT

T: 072 377 4386.

E: ruth.penfold@gmail.com

To find out more about Sue and for further information on the courses visit www.suehollingsworth.com